Emergency Vanity: Sports and Recreation

The Sports and Recreation First Aid Kit combines in a single bag all the supplies needed to treat the most common injuries that occur during sports activities: minor wounds, cuts, bleeding, bruises, and situations requiring support or eye irrigation. Its contents provide quick access to various types of first-aid supplies without the need for multiple containers.

It includes, in particular, bandages, sterile gauze pads, cohesive bandages, hemostatic agents, saline solution, cold packs, and the essential first-aid supplies. This variety makes it particularly well-suited for sports clubs, gyms, locker rooms, playing fields, and travel to competitions.

Contents tailored for minor sports injuries

Cohesive bandages provide support or compression, while instant cold packs and cold spray round out the supplies available following a minor impact or injury. For minor wounds and bleeding, the first-aid kit contains various bandages, sterile gauze pads, and Coalgan® hemostatic products.

Saline solution is used specifically for eye rinsing, while the emergency blanket, triangular bandage, gloves, scissors, and mouth-to-mouth mask round out the kit, providing versatile equipment for training sessions, competitions, or travel.

Easy to carry and organize

The case is made of red PU and features a reinforced handle that makes it easy to carry between locker rooms, fields, or various practice locations. Its size allows you to store a relatively complete first-aid kit in a container that remains easy to move.

An integrated zippered inner pocket in the lid allows you to separate small accessories and keep them easily accessible. This organization also makes it easier to check the contents after use to identify items that need to be replaced.

An Easily Identifiable Kit

Its red color and the reflective crosses on all four sides make it easy to spot when stored alongside bags, sports equipment, or other gear. This visibility is particularly useful in a locker room, storage area, or when traveling with multiple pieces of equipment.
