A flexible elastic fabric bandage

The elastic fabric backing provides flexibility and moves more easily with the protected area. This type of bandage is particularly suitable for small cuts on the hands, fingers, or near a joint.

Farmor uses ultra-adhesive bandages to ensure a secure hold, while being designed not to stick directly to the wound to make removal easier.

A refill designed for wall-mounted dispensers

The refill packaging allows you to directly replace used bandages without changing the dispenser. This makes it possible to keep a first-aid station set up near workstations while replenishing only the consumables.

The box of 5 refills provides a stock of 180 bandages to ensure several successive restocks.

Which color should you choose?

The flesh-colored version is a versatile solution for workshops, offices, warehouses, public facilities, and other professional environments.

The blue version offers more prominent visual identification and may be preferred in environments where quick identification of the bandage is desired.
