A solution also designed for minor bleeding

The pressure bandage is accompanied by 2 sterile Coalgan® hemostatic wicks. The kit is therefore not limited to treating only scrapes or superficial cuts.

The elastic bands and roll of adhesive tape can then be used to secure a compress or bandage as needed.

Bruises and minor injuries

Four compresses impregnated with a calendula solution are included in the kit for minor bumps and injuries encountered in daily life.

A survival blanket rounds out the kit for when temporary thermal protection is needed.

Essential small supplies are included

The kit includes a pair of 15-cm Lister scissors, flat-jawed splinter tweezers, and a pair of disposable gloves.

A first-aid booklet in 10 languages completes the set.

Restock without replacing the container

This kit is particularly useful when a first-aid kit or cabinet is still in good condition but its supplies have been used, damaged, or have expired.

It allows you to quickly restock a multi-risk kit for 1 to 5 people without having to purchase a completely new set of equipment.

Check first aid supplies regularly

The contents of a first-aid kit or cabinet must be checked periodically. Used items must be replaced, and the condition of the packaging as well as the expiration dates of the supplies must be verified.

This regular inspection ensures that the supplies remain complete and immediately available in the event of an incident.
